The Crossed Keys

April 2016

Christ is Risen!

Happy Easter everyone. I hope you all enjoyed the Holy Week and Easter service as much as I did. We had wonderful worship and made great inroads to a more visible Christian unity in the town of Sheridan. Protestant division is a 500-year-old issue for the church and will not be undone overnight, but surely we can say we are taking baby steps towards creating a more united Christian community in Sheridan.

Please understand you are an important part of that – St. Peter's is the only church that can be a bridge between the Evangelical, Protestant, and Roman Catholic Communities in town. Be assured of two things 1) It is not an accident we are in this position and 2) God will be support our efforts in this, Jesus promises this in John 17.

Moving towards more administrative matters, I would like to use this space to introduce you to a newly reformed committee at St. Peter's.

Introducing the (Revamped) Outreach Committee

One of the goals of our Senior Warden, Patrick Henderson, is to see the Vestry lead more efficiently and empower Committees and Task Forces to handle much of the leadership of the church. This allows the Vestry to work on a "big-picture" level and gives the Committee's and Task Forces the ability to deal with issues at a deeper level that the Vestry cannot.

The first committee that I would like to introduce you is the Outreach Committee. Robert Prusak, Carol Clark, Pam Standish, Wendy Gale, Dan Stewart and Sandy Tharaldson make up the Committee. I have tasked them with revising and developing guidelines for walk-in assistance as well as serving as the point group for community partnerships that use the downstairs space.

In a longer term goal, I have asked the Committee to inventory and evaluate the current Outreach ministries of St. Peter's. We have much going on in the parish and many of us are not aware of all the different Outreach taking place across the parish, as well as who participates in them. My hope is to present a better picture to all of us of what we are involved in, and hopefully avoiding duplication and burnout. Please feel free to talk to them about any concerns or ideas you may have regarding Outreach at St. Peter's.

Be on the lookout for more committees and task forces in the coming months, and please feel free to let me know if you have any interest in serving in a specific area.

Your priest,

John+

This month I'm going to do two things. I will give you some updates on students I have written about in the past (plus one new one). I am also going to say a bit about some things I've been involved in outside the classroom.

Ingrida: I mentioned before that she objects to Christianity because she thinks of it as restrictive. We had a conversation a couple of weeks ago and this topic came up again (as it always seems to), but in a specific form. She said she believes in loving and accepting everyone but thinks that if you are a Christian this gets in the way. You must then be evaluating and judging others, instead of letting them be who they are. I explained to her how in my experience the opposite has been true. It is precisely my relationship with Jesus that has changed my heart towards people to be more loving, accepting, patient, etc. I spoke also about the spirit's supernatural empowerment for love which believers sometimes experience. Miraculously, she seemed to get it. I mean "miraculously" quite literally. It is a miracle (and not a small one) when God opens our eyes to see things rightly. I hope this small shift in her perspective will lead to others.

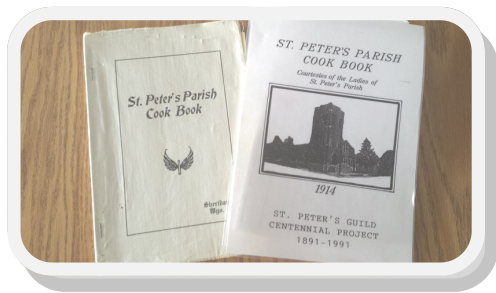

Ieva: I bumped into her in the cafeteria two weeks back in the midst of a bad day. She had just come from burying her dog, who had been hit by a car. We talked about that briefly and then the conversation turned to her struggle with unforgiveness. There is a friend who betrayed her trust. And then there is her father, who left her family when she was five and who now has other daughters whom he loves and cares for. She has been reading books and seeing a counselor, but making little progress. I said something brief about our inability to forgive in our humanness and God's empowerment for forgiveness. My sense is that she's not ready to try so drastic a measure as turning to God yet. She went on to tell me that she trusts no one, having found that vulnerability always leads to rejection. If only she knew how God sees her!

Dmitry: A few weeks back I noticed that he seemed to wear the same shirt often. One I had noticed, I started paying attention. He wears the same shirt every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday (and maybe Tuesday and Thursday, too, but I don't have him in class those days). I think he wears the same pants as well. I remember when I was packing to come here I wanted to make sure I brought five shirts, so I wouldn't have to wear the same one twice in a week. It is easy to take for granted what we have.

Olena: She is in my moral philosophy class, though she has missed many sessions due to illness. She had the flu early in the semester, then pneumonia a bit later, then some painful inflammation of the eyes that kept her in bed for several days. I passed her in a lounge area and she wasn't looking too cheery so I asked her how she was doing. She had just found out yesterday that her grandmother back in Ukraine was dead. Her mother didn't tell her until after the funeral so she wouldn't try to come back for it.

Gathering Recipes for a Fall Women of St. Peter's Cookbook

In 1914, ladies of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Peter's compiled recipes for a St. Peter's Cook Book. This was the very first recipe book created for St. Peter's.

Then, in August of 1991, a small group of women parishioners of St. Peter's gathered to discuss the 1914 recipe book, deciding to reprint the edition for the 100th year celebration of St. Peter's.

We need you to help us gather recipes for a new version of this St. Peter's Parish Cookbook to celebrate 125 years! This recipe book will contain old with new recipes.

Please submit one or two of your favorite recipes to the church office for collection. Ideas for recipes might be something you always bring to a potluck or a favorite soup you've made for a Lenten Dinner.

Please include your name, along with these submissions and maybe even why you chose it. Contact Roberta for questions at 674-8578.

Thank you for your support in this fun endeavor!
